

ENSEC COE Steers its Agenda toward Military Energy Efficiency

Written by Katerina Oskarsson
Tuesday, 14 January 2014 00:00

Director of NATO Energy Security Center of Excellence (ENSEC COE) in Lithuania, Colonel Romualdas Petkevicius, discussed the role of the ENSEC COE in energy security, especially as it relates to the energy efficiency of military forces. During a roundtable hosted by the Atlantic Council's Energy and Environment Program and the Brent Scowcroft Center on International Security, Col. Petkevicius highlighted that ENSEC COE's focus is now directed toward operational energy security. Read more at the Atlantic Council.